ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In an information distribution control system, a sync control server adds a time stamp to the stream information JS capable of being reproduced in real time and adds the sync time information to the storage-type information JT, so that the stream information JS and the storage-type information JT are reproduced in temporal synchronism with each other based on the time stamp and the sync time information in a plurality of clients.

84